Learning to Draw

1 year	6	3 hrs	5 days
48 weeks of lessons	stages, two months each	of drawing a day	a week, two days to rest

How the year goes

Stage 1 Months 1–2

Lines and shapes

Steady lines and simple shapes. Nothing has to look good yet.

Stage 2 Months 3–4

Light and the body

How shadows show shape. A whole body built from simple pieces.

Stage 3 Months 5–6

Space, faces and hands

Drawing things that sit in real space. Faces and hands do most of the acting.

Stage 4 Months 7–8

Scenes

Quick sketches of whole scenes, and learning what to leave out.

Stage 5 Months 9–10

Characters

Expressions, designing your own character, and studying films you love.

Stage 6 Months 11–12

Your portfolio

One character, their world and a short story. It ends with a flipbook.

A day of drawing

- Warm up — 20 min
- Quick poses — 35 min
- The week's lesson — 95 min
- Draw what's around you — 30 min

Busy day? Do an hour, or just twenty minutes. A missed day only means you finish a day later.

By the end, you can

- Draw people in action, from your head
- Draw a room that feels real
- Draw the same character over and over
- Tell a short story in pictures

Then you're ready to start animating.

Seeing your progress

Every two months, you draw the same four things. At the end, you line them all up.

- An action pose
- Your room
- A face, three moods
- An animal
